

Scientific Publications

Contents

Disclaimer: The articles provided on this website as pdfs were published by journals and in edited volumes and thus copyrighted to them. These links are intended to facilitate the accepted practice that authors are allowed to distribute copies of their articles to interested parties for personal use. No commercial use may be made of the articles nor is mass production of the articles permitted.

I believe that the best science is open and replicable. As such, you can access my projects from my Open Science page, found here. If you are interested in a project I have not yet uploaded, please contact me via email at timothy dot carsel at gmail dot com.

Carsel, T. S., Demos, A. P., & Motyl, M. (2018). Strong scientific theorizing is needed to improve replicability in psychological science. Behavior and Brain Sciences. PDF

Washburn, A. W., Hanson, B. E., Motyl, M., Skitka, L. J., Yantis, C., Wong, K. M., Sun, J., Prims, J. P., Mueller, A. B., Melton, Z. J., & Carsel, T. S. (2017). Why do some psychology researchers resist using proposed reforms to research practices? A description of researchers' rationales. Advances in Methods and Practices in Psychological Science. PDF

Motyl, M., Demos, A. P., Carsel, T. S., Hanson, B., Melton, Z. J., Mueller, A. B., Sun, J., Washburn, A. N., Wong, K. M., Yantis, C. A., Skitka, L. J. (2017). The state of social and personality science: Rotten to the core, not so bad, getting better, or getting worse? Journal of Personality and Social Psychology. PDF

Skitka, L. J., Washburn, A. N., Carsel, T. S. (2015). The psychological foundations and consequences of moral conviction. Current Opinion in Psychology 6, 41-44. PDF